LOCAL U. S. MARINE IS GUARDING MAILS

News comes to the Record from San Diego, Cal., that among the U. S. Marines who were first selected to guard the mails against possible attacks by bandits is Charles Grisler, of Daly City, who was stationed at San Diego prior to his assignment to this important duty.

He is one of several picked men from San Diego who began their duties as mail guards immediately after President Coolidge had given his approval. They are now furnishing protection to the mails in transit, guarding important postal centers, and insuring the safe delivery of valuable mail packages. They may not return to San Diego for several months.

Charles lived at the home of his father, Joseph Grisler, 1072 Brunswick street, Daly City, before he joined the Marine Corps at San Diego, last January.

It is the first time the Marines have guarded the mails since November, 1921 when they were assigned this task for about four months. During this period no mail robberies occurred.

GOLDEN RULE SUNDAY PROGRAM IS PREPARED

Next Sunday is Golden Rule Sunday, and the evening service at Grace Presbyterian church will be given over to the study of that great theme. Is the Golden Rule a workingman's rule for today? Is it the real Christian's way, and will it succeed in business? And is it a safe thing for a man to try to follow today?

You will get a real joy out of the church services if you put your real self in with the thought of helping some other with your time and your strength. But if you come desiring and looking for every person to make a fuss over you, then you will go away feeling that it was dull.

The singing last Sunday night was fine and spiritual and well worth while for you to come and help.

The Christian Endeavor meeting will be held at the usual hour, 7 o'clock, next Sunday evening. All are invited to attend.

The pastor of Grace Presbyterian church was invited to the home of the editor of the Record last Saturday evening and during the evening the editor's brother, Robert Leonard Caninie, was married to Mrs. Aleda Vincent, of Salt Lake City, Utah. A splendid lunch was served after the ceremony, and all departed wishing the best of this life for the newly married couple.

POPULAR YOUNG COUPLE UNITED IN MARRIAGE

The marriage of Miss Kathleen Moran and Mr. William P. Sugrue was solemnized on Saturday evening, November 27, at St. Maximus church, the Reverend Father J. Donohoe officiating.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. P. Moran of this city. The bride's dress was of blue taffeta, trimmed with pink velvet rosebuds, and she wore a large French hat to match, and carried a bouquet of bride's roses.

Miss Helen Moran, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. Her dress was of pink taffeta, embroidered with beads. Her bouquet was of pink roses.

Mr. Henry Long was best man.

Following the ceremony, the bride's parents gave a dinner at their home, 126 Acton street, for relatives and friends.

Mr. Sugrue is connected with an insurance company in San Francisco.

After their return from a short honeymoon, Mr. and Mrs. Sugrue will make their home in San Francisco.

Father Bertola came to America twenty years ago, and has paid one previous visit to Italy since his first arrival here. He states that he is now settling down into harness again, and is delighted to resume the happy associations of his work in Holy Angels parish.

LARGE CLASS WINS CITIZENSHIP TEST

Tuesday was new citizen's day at Redwood City. Judge Hudner presided in place of Judge Buck, who was slightly indisposed. The court room was entirely filled with candidates and witnesses. W. J. Savage was present with three candidates, Adolph Dencke of Daly City, and Joseph Pantaleoni and Peter Maffei, of Colma. All of these candidates were successful.

A feature of the session was the large number of women seeking citizenship. Some of them were those who had been raised in this country and had lost their citizenship by marrying aliens.

The examining United States district attorney was much easier than usual in his questionings. Many succeeded in getting through so easily that their success was an actual surprise to them. However, those who were wholly unfited to pass were given three months more in which to obtain the necessary acquaintance with the principles of our government.

The applicants for citizenship from Daly City who successfully passed the examination were Joseph Glavich, Adolph Dencke, Helen John, Herman Denk and Lena Atkind.

The successful applicants from Colma were Peter Maffei, Joseph Pantaleoni, Janey Vincenzini, Pietor Mafffei and Armando Pera.

Others awarded citizenship were: Alice Ellor Luty, Killiam Owen Luty, Cesare Marione, Antonio V. Olonto, Antonio Casagrende, Alfredo Cerri, Domenico Colombo, Jesus Garcia, Domenica Maltoni, Givo Roveta, Guiseppe Merla, Vittori Bellone, Karl Hermanson, Antonio Ontoniazzi, Racco Pieracceni, Guiseppe Maini and Ernesto Zaro, South San Francisco; Rose De Martini, Lena Clara Lagomarsino, Irene Lagomarsino Baciocco, Lawndale; Natale Giovannoni, William Scheffer, Cionzanni Dal Colletto, Half Moon Bay; Guiseppe Pantaleoni, Paul Gerhardt Christian Jensen, Annie McLean, Pearl Elizabeth Warren, Isabel MacBain, Burlingame; Andrew Marcapulos, Redwood City; Marie Madalina De Brouwere, Elizabeth Theresa Jenkins Agnes Bennett, Yvonne Lourensen, Mary Bottari, Anne Theresa Johnson, San Mateo; Walter Bassett, Menlo Park; Mary Bottari, San Bruno; Andro Bandur, Hillsborough.

NATIVE DAUGHTERS SELECT OFFICERS

The regular meeting of El Carmelo Parlor No. 181, Native Daughters of the Golden West, was held in Masonic Hall, last Wednesday evening, with President Annie Biggio presiding. A fine class of candidates were initiated into the order and the following officers were elected for the ensuing term: President, Sylvia Haubrich Fischer; First Vice-President, Alice Mathias; Second Vice-President, Lorraine Wall; Third Vice-President, Dolores Barron; Marshal, Rose Mowry; Inside Sentinel, Florence McKendrick; Outside Sentinel, Louise Christen; Recording Secretary, Josephine T. Johnson; Trustees, Mrs. Margaret MacDonald, Mrs. M. May and Mrs. Fredericka Volkman; Past President, Annie Biggio.

Following the meeting, which was well attended, a delicious chicken supper was served in the banquet hall, the tables being beautifully decorated in red and white, with red candles and bunches of Christmas berries. The committee in charge of the supper are to be commended on the wonderful spread which was served.

UNITED IN MARRIAGE

Robert Leonard Canine, of 173 Chattanooga street, and Mrs. Aleda Vincent, of Salt Lake City, Utah, were united in marriage at the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Canine last Saturday evening, Rev. Charles H. Gatchell, of Grace Presbyterian church, officiating. The attendants were Mrs. F. G. Canine, of Palo, Alto, and R. A. Canine, little Beverly Canine, of Palo Alto, acting as flower girl. The guests for the ceremony were confined to a few relatives and close friends. The newly-weds will make their home in San Francisco, where the groom is connected with a printing establishment.

ENJOYABLE BIRTHDAY PARTY

A birthday party was given in honor of Henry Blaylock's twenty-first birthday at the Blaylock home last Saturday evening. Among those present were: Messrs. L. Warner, R. Foppiano, E. Blaylock.

A GREAT CHARACTER NOW A MEMORY

Henry Clay Hall, one of the best known characters of San Mateo county, passed away peacefully at his home in Corte Madera, Marin county, on Thanksgiving eve.

He broke down at his work, last February, with a stroke of paralysis, and from that time until the second stroke, with his usual good nature, he tried valiantly to regain his health, but it was not to be. However, during all this period, he felt he was getting better, his only misgiving being his failure to regain complete control of his vocal organs. After his second stroke, five days before his death, he never spoke again.

His funeral took place on Saturday from the undertaking parlor at San Rafael, where large numbers called to pay their last respects and where numerous floral offerings were placed by loving friends around his casket.

A requiem mass was celebrated for the repose of his soul at the little Catholic church of Larkspur, where he was accustomed to worship. After the mass and the blessing, the good pastor spoke feelingly of the departed, saying he had been the most important one of the community, that his work was well done, and that he ventured to prophesy that the time would come when his absence would be sadly felt.

The speaker said he was sorry to say, that wonderful as his work had been, still it was not appreciated and that this lack of appreciation had often been a source of distress to the decased, but he was not wont to complain.

From the little church the funeral cortege wound its way to the ferry, across the bay, through the great city, and to Holy Cross cemetery, where the last tears were shed and the body that once contained the great soul of Henry C. Hall was laid in the arms of mother earth.

Henry Clay Hall was born in Mariposa county, April 18, 1858. His father was a pioneer from Illinois and his mother an intelligent Irish immigrant, overflowing with wit and humor. A brother of his, George W. Hall, the well known educator of San Mateo, still lives, and a sister, Ellen, also survives him.

When he was about four years of age the family moved from Mariposa to San Mateo county and settled at Searsville, now called Portola. Like many others of that early period, this family had very little of this world's goods. A mere existence was a hard struggle for them, but fortune had placed them among beautiful natural surroundings and the sunny disposition of the mother more than compensated for lack of means.

The boy went to the little country school and his unusual brightness very soon gave him the place of leadership. He seemed to know everything, and with all his wisdom there was such a winsome sweetness that everyone who came in contact with this boy became his friend.

Very soon the little school could do no more for him and he went to the graded school at Redwood City, the best in the county at that time.

It is not necessary to say he found himself easily the leader, at once. His close communion with nature among the hills and dales of Portola, his diligent reading of good books, and his mother's natural wit gave him a background that the others did not have.

He was the star pupil on every occasion, leading in every educational test and entertainment.

At length it became evident that he was the charming speaker to whom young and old were anxious to listen. He was so debonair in his appearance, so graceful in his manners, so musical in voice, and so delicate in his choice of words, that to have him do the speaking was considered a special favor.

While all paid him tribute and wondered what high station in life would be his, the years went by, and he became old enough to try the examination for teachers. He concluded to try the test, against his mother's wishes. She knew how little teachers were thought of in the old country.

He tried and, of course, was successful, obtaining a first grade county certificate. He taught temporarily, here and there, and for a short time at Redwood City. Finally he became permanently located at Menlo Park, as the principal of the public school, in 1878. As such he felt himself the leader of all social activities, and he was. Every good teacher had to be the leader in those days. No occasion—party, grand ball, picnic, wedding, baptism, or even funeral—was complete without him. If anything had to be written, spoken or done, all depended upon him.

In spite of all the other duties he performed, he never neglected any of his pupils, who ranged in years from twenty to seven and in studies from the beginning to the twenty-two studies required for a teacher's certificate.

His charm of manner, with his gentle determination, made him an ideal teacher. Every pupil responded to him, doing far more than might be expected. To please the great teacher no effort was spared. Long hours of close study at night were considered no hardship. The excellence of the work done in his school gave it fame, and ere long it was spoken of as the best in the county.

As a young man it was the pleasure of the writer to visit his school. What he saw was a revelation to him. The children were doing work definitely, reading like elocutionists, explaining and demonstrating like scholars, drawing like artists, writing and speaking correctly, and all showing greatest respect and esteem for their teacher.

Such was Henry C. Hall's success as a teacher to the very end.

With all of his charming personality, it was perfectly natural for Mr. Hall to be drawn into politics. The leaders of his party saw in him prospects for victory. In 1882 he became a candidate for county auditor against Edward Eikerenkotter. He ran as a Democrat, but could not spare much time from his school duties to canvass the county voters, and he was defeated by only a few votes. Had he won, how different might have been his career! He often said if he had won, he would have studied law and been a lawyer, and in that wide field he might have won renown, which would have made his services of value, in dollars.

At all conventions he was popular as a delegate, because he knew the trick of writing clearly and talking eloquently. He was often a member of his party's county committee, and he was chairman during one campaign.

His political ability attracted even state attention. He was given the nomination for state superintendent of schools during the nineties and made a good run.

In 1893 he was appointed a member of the county board of education, became its president, and through making and issuing a new course of study, really the first and best the county ever had, he improved all our schools. How hard he worked to make that course a success! The writer was with him in every move and learned much.

In all his endeavors he was totally unselfish. The poor old soldier, the poverty-stricken widow, the broken down drinking-man, or any other unfortunate could claim his attention and have the claim allowed.

Likewise, every struggling weekly newspaper that aspired for notice in this county owes the deceased a heavy debt of gratitude. Not only did he help to introduce the publications in his community, but in spite of his manifold other duties, he would write a column of brevities for the paper every week, in such perfect English that they were a delight to all readers.

He was married in 1887, winning, as he said himself, "the brown-eyed maid of Menlo," who with four adult children, two boys and two girls, survive him.

One of his sons, Henry Hall, Jr., is a resident of San Mateo county, being the district superintendent of the schools of San Bruno.

Although his name remains, still our county loses in the passing of Henry Clay Hall one who knew and loved all its pretty spots. How he rejoiced when a tract of the grand old redwoods was saved from the woodman's wanton ax!

The last time the writer conversed with him, about a month ago, he did his best to recount how he had argued with legislators for laws to save the wild game and song birds from complete extinction. While others slept he toiled for the sake of posterity.

It would be very easy to write on, for the writer knew Henry Hall well, keeping close track of him for more than forty years and always learning from him. His pleasant conversation was instruction of the best kind, and every letter of his was a literary gem worthy of preservation as a model.

If the writer had been called before him, he would have written his eulogy, and now when the great soul is at rest and the once ready pen lies idle and powerless, it has become the duty of the writer to pay this poor tribute to one who deserved the highest reward.

Farewell, good friend and great teacher. Thousands will always enshrine you in their memory, as one who helped them. Those who did not appreciate your noble efforts are just as silent now as when your eloquence scourged them.

W. J. SAVAGE.

DIBBLE LOSES IN RECOUNT OF VOTE

The re-election of Constable James C. Wallace, of South San Francisco, was affirmed at the conclusion of the contest proceedings in the Superior Court at Redwood City, yesterday, the recount of the vote showing that Constable Wallace had been re-elected at the general election on November 2.

The recount showed that Wallace had been given 93 votes more than were cast for C. A. Dibble, the vote being: Wallace, 2,772; Dibble, 2,679.

The contest was filed by C. A. Dibble on November 20, it being contended by Dibble that election officers read votes for Wallace that were not cast for him. He further alleged that votes were cast for him that were not tallied for him.

The official canvass by the board of supervisors showed that Dibble received 2,647 votes and Wallace 2,782. The contestant had a margin of 135 votes to overcome.

Attorneys Ross & Ross represented Dibble in the contest, while Attorney Herbert Mansfield represented Wallace. Mrs. M. White, of Daly City, was tally clerk for Dibble.

The recount was the third contest filed over results of the election on November 2.

LAWNDALE VOTES FOR MUNICIPALITY

At the special election held last week at Lawndale, dissolution of the incorporation of that city failed to carry by eighteen votes. The vote on the proposal, which developed into a warm fight as pre-election days drew to a close, was 70 votes for the dissolution and 62 against.

The measure required a two-thirds vote to become effective, and it is said would have carried if the "farmer party" had succeeded in swinging a few more votes from the opposition, as represented by the cemetery interests, owners of large realty holdings inside the municipality, it was claimed by proponents of the issue, who were responsible for the special election.

The campaign brought to a climax a fight of nearly two years standing between agricultural interests in the district and the management of several large cemeteries, which brought about the incorporation two years ago.

It is claimed that having demonstrated by the recent vote that they have a majority of the electors sufficient to unseat the trustees, members of the "farm bloc" are giving serious consideration to the recall issue, it was reported by several who took a leading part in the fight for the dissolution of the municipality.

The principal issues over which the two parties have split is that of increased valuations for tax purposes, the "farmers" claiming that they are required to meet what is virtually a city tax rate on their agricultural holdings, members of the dissolution party claim.

The recall proposal, by which the farmers hope to effect a reduction in valuations, is to be decided at a meeting in the near future, it is said.

All the former cadets, their wives and sweethearts, will be on hand to meet those they have not seen in many years.

COUNTY AWARDED SHARE OF GAS TAX

San Mateo county has been apportioned $46,305 by the state for the repair and improvement of its highways. The amount is the county's portion of the gas tax collections, which are divided equally, semi-annually, between the state and the counties.

The counties' share this time amounted to $4,355,788, State Collector Ray L. Riley announced.

San Mateo county ranked eleventh of all the counties in the amount of allotments.

Los Angeles county was allotted $1,706,365, more than four times the amount awarded San Francisco.

The leading counties ranked as follows: Los Angeles, $1,706,365.44; San Francisco, $338,742.84; Alameda, $318,264.59; Contra Costa, $52,300.24; Fresno, $146,092.31; Kern, $88,632.87; Marin, $24,057.96; Sacramento, $109,973.77; San Bernardino, $96,935.16; San Diego, $157,999.04; San Mateo, $46,305.47; Santa Clara, $123,427.22; Solano, $29,648.69; Ventura, $41,222.

ACCIDENTS DUE TO NEGLIGENCE

Elimination to the minimum of the 80 per cent of all industrial accidents said to be due to thoughtlessness and negligence on the part of employes is the object of a state-wide campaign of education now being waged by the State Compensation Insurance Fund, it is announced by Charles B. Morris, assistant manager of the Fund.

That a large percentage of industrial accidents is due entirely to preventable causes and failure of the employe to think along safety lines is pointed out in addresses given in the large industrial plants of the state by James F. Currie, accident prevention expert of the safety department, who has charge of the work in the field. The campaign is under the direct supervision of I. R. Cockroft, chief of the safety engineering department.

Using certain accidents as examples, Mr. Currie, who generally addresses the employes during the noon hour, discusses how, with more precaution and thought directed along correct lines, these accidents could have been prevented. This educational service to the employer and employe is free and it has been found that as a rule employers and employes alike are glad to co-operate in this effort of the State Fund to materially reduce losses suffered by employes through industrial accidents. As decrease in accidents in any given plant correspondingly decreases the premium rate and is also of material benefit to the employe and his family, a mutual interest is manifested in the prevention work of the Fund. In most of the large plants safety clubs are being organized among the employes, and competition is stimulated with the effect of increasing thinking along safety lines.

It is pointed out by Mr. Currie that annually there are in the neighborhood of 600 industrial deaths in California. This means that for every working day two are killed following peaceful pursuits. In addition to this death toll, 1,160 are permanently injured, suffering such injuries as loss of fingers, hands, arms, legs and eyes.

During the year 1925, workmen's compensation and medical benefits disbursed to injured and their dependents in the state aggregated $10,615,080, of which the State Fund paid $3,329,601, or approximately one-third. The Fund is a non-profit organization and to date has returned in dividends to its policy-holders more than $11,400,000.

According to Mr. Currie, less than 15 per cent of industrial accidents are due to defective guarding and other safety devices, and the remainder are due to other causes which require education and safety training among the employes themselves. "To think safety is to practice safety," is the slogan of the campaign, and the work of the campaign serves to call attention of the employes, for their own benefit, as well as for the benefit of the industry and the whole community at large, to the fact that thought properly directed will play an important role in the prevention of many industrial deaths, much physical suffering and a great deal of hardships among dependents.

Highest Quality in Proper Self-Esteem

Humility is not always a grace, and sometimes is a close approach to hypocrisy. Lord Bacon was right when he warned public speakers to avoid excuses and professions of humility. "Though they seem to proceed of modesty, yet are they but bravery," he said.

There are people who seek to lash themselves into virtuous living by reminding themselves that they are poor worms of the dust. It is not always the best way. It was not the way Nehemiah held himself true to his principles.

There was a time of danger, and the leading men of Jerusalem were holding terrified counsel behind closed doors. "Let us meet together in the house of God, and let us shut the doors of the temple," they counseled. But Nehemiah would not heed their warning, though he was the man whom danger threatened most. "Should such a man as I flee?" he demanded. "And who is there that, being as I am, would go into the temple to save his life? I will not go in."

He was ashamed to disgrace as good a man as he knew himself to be!—Youth's Companion.

Mohammed Used Both Precept and Example

He wore a golden ring until he noticed that all the people were beginning to follow his example, whereupon he went into the pulpit, pulled the ring off with the words: "By the Lord I will not wear this ring ever again," and then prohibited the use of such adornments.

A friend who had sent him a present in the form of a steaming dinner was much chagrined when it was returned uneaten and even untouched by his fingers—for he "used to eat with his thumb and his two forefingers," and "after he had finished eating, he licked his blessed fingers: first the middle one, then the prayer finger, and last the thumb," but he was pacified when the prophet explained that he had not tasted it because onions had been cooked with the food; for Gabriel, he went on to say, strenuously objected to the odor of both onions and garlic. Furthermore, he abstained from tasting lizards, for he feared that they were descended, by some inexplicable metempsychosis, from a certain tribe of Israel.—From "Mohammed," by R. F. Dibble.

No Wonder She Fainted

He was a dapper little man at the door trying his best to sell a can opener.

"Madam," he began glibly, "I am selling a can opener that cannot be beaten. It can open any can that cannot be opened by an ordinary can opener, and any can that can be opened by a can opener. If you can show me a can that cannot be opened by any can opener other than this can opener, I will prove to you that this can opener can open a can quicker than any other can opener can. Now if you can get a can opener that can open a can quicker—"

But by this time the lady of the house had fainted on the cold doorstep.

Old Bill Shaved Beard

The old fisherman, Captain Bill, was a great character at the Cove. He was a picturesque old fellow with his long-flowing beard, and was the model of many a painter. Not long before his death he shaved off his beard, to the distress of the artists.

"Why, Bill!" exclaimed one of the painters in amazement when meeting him on the road. "Where is your beard?"

"Well," he exclaimed slowly and a bit sorrowfully, "it is this way—my son, he said as how it wasn't hygienic. You see, last winter the tobacco juice got all froze in—so he made me cut it off."—From "Touring New England," by Clara Walker Whiteside (Penn).

Indian Pictographs

There are some 50 or 60 places in various parts of California from the northern boundary of the state to San Diego county where pictographs and petroglyphs are found. They are interesting but we have no indication as to what their purpose was and aside from the person or persons who made them, no one knows what the figures are supposed to be. We do know that in San Diego county in former times the girls painted symbolic figures on granite boulders at the completion of their adolescence ceremonies. Some anthropologists have suggested that these carvings and paintings are the work of shamans.—Mr. Woodward, in Adventure Magazine.

Capital Letters

"Caput" in Latin really means a head, and so a chief and thus it comes about that we speak of "capital" letters to describe those that are used to mark the chief or most important words in a sentence.

When writing started all the words were written in the same hand, and as far as our own alphabet was concerned, mostly in what we now call capital letters. Gradually, however, it was found that one could write more quickly by joining up the letters. Next it occurred to us to emphasize the beginnings of important words by writing them in the old manner, and so we get our "capitals."

Odd Pillar Formation the Work of Nature

Columns of pillars of various mineral matters, sometimes of great size, have been found by geologists. They are said to have been formed by unequal weathering.

Similar ice pillars are sometimes seen on the surface of a glacier, due to the protection of the ice from melting under the heat of the sun by the shadow cast by the rock mass.

There are rain-made columns containing many large stones near Antelope park in a small tributary of the Rio Grande. The stones protect the portion beneath them from the rain. When the waters descended, the walls being made first, they formed the columns shown. Some of the columns are 60 or 80 feet high, and some 400 feet high.

In certain districts sandstones have been split and left in fragments, resembling huge single stones that so closely cover the surface that in many places one can leap from stone to stone without descending to the ground. These stones are frequently of considerable size, many of them being from 20 to 25 feet across and 12 feet in thickness.

Stones of this character have been employed for the formation of the so-called druidical circles, and are therefore called the druid stones. Sometimes stones of this character, from their resemblance at a distance to a flock of sheep, are called gray wethers

Not Much Haggling Over Diamond Deals

A shabbily dressed man strolls down a quiet street not a minute from Hatton Garden, London. He looks as if he might be worth $25 all told. He stops by a public house and acknowledges the casual greeting of a man little better dressed than himself.

For perhaps five minutes both are absorbed in something the shabbier of the two takes from a leather wallet. Something changes hands and the two part. It is all over in five minutes.

What sort of business have they been transacting? Merely a little deal in diamonds. And how much was involved? Around $5,000.

Stolen stones sometimes come into the Hatton Garden market. But woe betide the crook who seeks to dispose of well-known stones there! Dealers will have none of him.

Unset diamonds, necklaces, bracelets, brooches and rings all find their way to this unique mart. All deals are for cash and all are quickly, silently, and quite casually put through.

The Silver Sword

On the Hawaiian islands may be found wonders of nature not seen anywhere else in the world. On Maui, the Garden island, the volcano of Haleakala rears its snow-capped crest above the clouds. The rim of the crater is 20 miles around, and here it is that the rare silver sword plant may be found. From a distance it resembles the yucca of California. Thick felt-like leaves cluster at the base of a tall slender stem, crowned with a silvery plume of flowers. The silver sword is becoming scarce, due to the ravages of mountain goats. It grows in such inaccessible places that it is as difficult to gather as the Alpine edelweiss.

Music Charms Horses

Horses are particularly sensitive to music, especially martial airs. In 1892 a certain British regiment was making a military test march. When the music started a young horse, ridden by a captain, hastened forward and placed itself in spite of its rider, behind the last rank of the musicians. Then it followed peacefully, giving obvious signs of pleasure. When the music ceased the captain was able to resume his place at the head of his company. But when the band struck up again the horse galloped ahead, and once more placed itself behind the musicians.

Good Motto to Remember

There is an old college in England, built some centuries ago, that has carved over its stone doorway William of Wykeham's famous motto, "Do the next thing!" No doubt of the generations of young men who have passed through the portal in the last five hundred years, there have been many influenced by that optimistic cheery old message, and remembering it, have courageously turned away from sorrows, failures, mistakes and troubles to do the next best thing.

Wonderful

It being the telegrapher's twenty-fifth birthday, the office force presented him with a bunch of twenty-five roses, for which he returned thanks. Just then several people came in with messages to send.

Grasping the roses in his left hand the operator began to work the key with his right.

"He is telegraphing those flowers," whispered one of the women in line. "Isn't it wonderful what science can do?"

Dogs Must Wear Moccasins

Army regulations referring to dogs used in Alaska for transportation provide that, with other things, each sled taken out shall be furnished with "two pairs of moccasins specially fitted for each dog." Another unusual feature of these regulations is that "the nails of dogs will be carefully pared down before the first work in the fall, and will be examined every month and pared as often as necessary to prevent pulling out, which causes lameness."

SIDELIGHTS

Pay for educators is on the upward trend, according to a Seattle dispatch, which reports that a minimum salary of $3,000 annually has been established for associate professors at the University of Washington. This places the pedagogues on an almost equal footing with Vancouver bricklayers, whose new scale of $10 a day would give them $3,120 a year, if they worked steadily.

That one may travel a lot without getting anywhere is illustrated by the case of Nicholas G. Stoehr, of Pittsburg, who has covered a million miles in the last thirty-five years. He has just retired from service as a street car conductor in his home city.

Correspondence courses are no doubt helpful to a certain extent, but they have their limitations, as 17-year-old Otto Urban, of New York, can painfully testify. Studying to be an expert detective, he tried to follow written instructions for the correct handling of a revolver—and shot himself in the knee.

Persons of varying shades of religious opinion will view a recent occurrence at Port Huron, Mich., according to their respective lights. There an American flag, donated by the K. K. K., was hoisted by a negro war veteran to the top of a pole given by a prominent Jew, while the dedicatory address was made by a Catholic priest, the ceremony taking place in the yard of the Methodist church.

Lew Wentz, a multi-millionaire oil man and open-handed philanthropist of Ponca City, Oklahoma, set aside a fund of $1,000,000 to be loaned to farmers of his state without interest, in order to enable them to hold their cotton for a better price. Just another illustration that great wealth is not always used to oppress the plain people.

A most unusual fish story which, strangely enough, is absolutely true, comes from San Francisco, where John A. Ewen, a stone cutter, uncovered with his chisel the fossil of a 10-inch prehistoric fish imbedded in a block of limestone. Dr. George D. Hanna, palenontologist, identified the specimen as a ganoid, now extinct for many thousands of years, and has placed it on exhibition at the Academy of Sciences.

Human benefactors work in diverse ways for their fellow men, giving their time, their talents or their money as fancy or necessity dictates. Some even give their blood, as Raymond Briez, of Paris, has done no less than 101 times in transfusions to save the lives of others, without accepting a single franc in payment. His benefactions have covered a period of five years, he being now 29, and a petition has been presented by grateful countrymen who desire that he be admitted to the Legion of Honor.

A novel use for electricity, though not entirely new, is its employment in connection with the feeding of fish. At the new state game farm at Lapwai, Idaho, strings of electric lights are placed across the pools close to the water. The lights attract millions of bugs, which are seized and eaten by the fish.

Even prize beauties have their ups and downs. One recently suffered humiliation and is suing a San Francisco proprietor of a beach concession for $50,000 because a trick machine using compressed air blew her skirts over her head while she was passing through the mazes of the "nut house."

A late triumph in dental engineering is the construction of a metallic jaw bone joint for a war veteran who lost the natural one through a bullet wound. Scientifically stated, "this particular case involved the construction of a mechanical device to take the place of the ramus and temporomandibular articulation." This sort of contraption may now be carried in the regular stock of spare parts supplied by the Veterans' Bureau.

Everything that goes up must come down, but not always immediately. A boy at Manchester, Michigan, sent up a free balloon carrying a note requesting the finder to notify him. Some days later he received word that his balloon had alighted at Glendale, California. The Bureau of Aeronautics belives this to have been the longest flight ever made under similar circumstances.

New England states will begin a campaign of advertising the advantages offered by that section, including its climate. It is undisputed that no part of the country offers a greater variety of climate, much of which is quite delightful. Mark Twain once declared that he had been collecting winds for years, but completed his collection there in one day.

Bristol, upon whose shaggy head had been pettingly laid the hands of many of the world's most famous statesmen, is dead. He was the most widely beloved dog of his day, a massive St. Bernard who for seven years stood guard at the entrance to the League of Nations at Geneva.

Folks who suddenly get religion often make confessions involving others. Not so frequently they confess things which incriminate themselves. News has just reached America which seems to clear up the mystery of the death of Prof. Marvin of Cornell, who was lost while on an Arctic expedition with Admiral Peary. Upon being converted by a missionary, an Eskimo named Kudlooktoo confessed that he shot Marvin to save the life of a disabled Eskimo friend whom Martin wanted to leave behind on the ice to die. The state department will investigate.

"Educate youth against the taste of whisky," urges a prohibition administrator. This would be easy if youth were interested only in the taste of the stuff.

If, as a critic asserts, trivial writing commands the greatest money returns, our stuff must be mighty high-class.

MORE TELEPHONE LINES FOR SOUTHERN RAILWAY

The Southern Railway system recently placed telephone dispatching lines in service between Atlanta and Macon as part of the program for improving the Southern lines between Florida and the West. With this new linking service the Southern Railway now has a telephone system covering 2,060 miles of its principal lines, the telephone having gradually replaced the telegraph for dispatching trains. Among the lines where it is now in use are between Washington and Birmingham via Atlanta, between Cincinnati and Meridian via Chattanooga and Birmingham, between Salisbury and Chattanooga via Asheville and Knoxville, and between Chattanooga and Macon via Atlanta.

When a lady lecturer declared that the time would come when women would get men's wages, a meek little fellow murmured: "Yeah; next Saturday night."

"Eve's Leaves" is the title of the feature picture to be shown at the State Theatre next Wednesday, December 8. Eddie's Advershow, that riot of fun, is also a feature of the Wednesday bill. A crowded house is expected.

Friendly Redheads at Notre Dame

One of the most unusual happenings in the history of football is that Coach Knute Rockne of Notre Dame has used two captains for his varsity team this fall. They are both "Redheads" and are capable of burning up the gridiron. Coach Rockne says that he needs them both as captains, and uses them as he thinks best when a game is scheduled. The photograph shows (left to right) the red-headed captains of Notre Dame: Tom Hearden and Gene Edwards.

Tennis Almost Cost Michigan Grid Star

Tennis almost caused Michigan to lose one of the star members of the Wolverine's brilliant back field.

During his prep school days Half-back Gilbert had starred on the courts as well as the gridiron. He had a state interscholastic tennis title to his credit when he entered Michigan.

At first he expressed a preference for tennis over football. Hearing of his prowess as a football player, Coach Yost persuaded him he could do more for Michigan by continuing his grid activities.

Against Illinois his general all-round play, featuring some mighty consistent punting, was a big factor in Michigan's victory.

NURMI AND RIVALS TO TOUR AMERICA

Three Foreign Stars to Stir Up Competition.

Negotiations have been completed to bring to the United States this winter Paavo Nurmi, the famous Finnish runner, and his two foremost rivals, Dr. Otto Peltzer of Germany and Edwin Wide, the Swedish schoolmaster, for a series of indoor meets.

The three foreign stars, according to reliable information, will appear in a country-wide tour that promises to stir up the most spectacular indoor track competition America has ever seen.

It will be a return invasion for Nurmi, who swept nearly all before him on a conquering tour of America in the winter of 1924-25, but this time he will have as opponents two men who not only have given him his closest races but also have beaten him recently.

The runners will appear under amateur colors and under the auspices of a group of prominent athletic clubs, understood to be led by the New York Athletic club and including organizations in Chicago, St. Louis, San Francisco and other big cities.

All three have rejected big offers to turn professional. Doctor Peltzer, the German sensation who broke Ted Meredith's half-mile record several months ago and later defeated Nurmi at the Finn's favorite distance, 1,500 meters, in world's record time, is understood to have refused an offer of $25,000 to turn professional. Nurmi and Wide likewise rejected flattering proposals to forsake the amateur talent, at least one of which was said to have been made by Charles C. Pyle, manager of Suzanne Lengien and Red Grange.

Nurmi, Wide and Peltzer met a month ago in Berlin in two special races in each of which the Finn was outrun. Besides losing to Peltzer and Wide at 1,500 meters, Nurmi also dipped his colors to Wide over a two-mile route which the Swede covered in record-breaking time.

All three runners are expected to arrive in the United States in November to train for indoor competition which probably will start early in January at Madison Square garden.

Jones Will Not Defend His British Open Title

Bobby Jones, first American amateur to win the British open golf championship, says that he will be too busy next year to defend that title. He added that he will defend his title as American open golf champion, and that he probably will enter the American amateur tournament.

Jones said that his business interests and the study of law which he started this fall will prevent him from playing in any winter tournaments this season. Then referring to big tournaments, in which he is a veteran with an outstanding record, he added, with a smile:

"I hope to play in the United States open, but that doesn't mean I have much chance. I've played in nearly a dozen open championships over here and was lucky to win as many as two. The United States open and the United States amateur are all I can see for 1927, and darn little chance to win them. They seem to be getting tougher and tougher."

Business First in This Baseball Era

"What's the difference between the player of today and the old-time players?" was the question put to Grover Hartley, veteran catcher, recently.

"Well," replied Hartley, "the ball player of today is a far better business man than the ball player of yesterday. The ball player of today knows the value of Florida real estate, and he knows his value as a box-office attraction.

"And when it comes to signing his contract he lets the club owner know he's a business man as well as a ball player."

That's the difference between the ball player of today and yesterday. The old-time player was smart in a baseball way, but a poor business man.

Prize Fighting Jolted by German Publication

A savage attack on the growing favor which boxing enjoys in Germany is launched by the Tuermer, a monthly publication.

"Twelve thousand people gather in order to see how two men in an angry fight draw each other's blood from the nose and the mouth and break each other's ribs," the periodical observes. "While German artists are starving this vilest of sports is so popular that money is always available for it. Just reflect, if every spectator were to buy a book what assistance this would mean to literature."

The article closes: "As long as it is possible for a down-and-out people, weighted down with war debts and distressed by dearth of homes, to patronize amusements of this sort, it isn't worth leading into brighter future."

Geneva's Great Success Is Due to Bo McMillan

The explanation of a 16-to-7 football victory by little Geneva college of Beaver Falls, Pa., over Harvard, and the hard-fought battle, which resulted in a 6-0 triumph for Cornell, lies in the personality and ability of Head Coach "Bo" McMillan, in the opinion of Rev. McLeon M. Pearce, president of the Presbyterian institution.

"Neither money nor scholastic favors or laxity of college rules are permitted there, the New York World quotes Doctor Pierce as saying when informed of growing criticism of his school. He gave entire credit to McMillan.

"The thing our critics cannot understand," he said, "is that we have a coach who attracts athletes by his personality and trains them with a skill far beyond the ordinary. This and not money explains our success. We stand for scholarship, not athletics."

CALIFORNIA NEWS BRIEFS

"Thar's gold in them thar hills," up in Trinity county, and if you don't believe it, just listen to the story of Fred Miller. Fred Miller, an old-time prospector, believed that there was plenty of gold in the old Ozard mine in Rich Gulch near Helena, so he offered three weeks ago, to buy the property. The owner wanted $100, but Miller argued him down to $50. The aged prospector had only $65 and he needed that extra $15 for provisions. Well, all that glistens isn't gold, but you can't always tell how much gold is in a mine by the glitter, according to Miller. In the last three weeks he's taken $1,200 out of the abandoned Ozard mine, or exactly 24 times his investment, according to advices from Helena. And he is said to be bringing out the yellow metal at the rate of from $40 to $50 a day.

Tulare countians have just had offered to them another interesting bit of evidence supporting the established theory that mind and matter of every variety can thrive on its soil. In this instance the products are two books, just published by a well known publishing house, written by residents of the Three Rivers section, just below Sequoia National Park, dealing with the same fundamental—romance—yet handled in two distinctive manners. Major Frederick Burnham, 70-year-old frontiersman and holder of the British Distinguished Service medal, has recently described his 30 years as a plainsman and scout, a romantic subject which publishers had sought to obtain for a decade.

A fire prevention bill empowering the State Forester to establish districts of fire hazard throughout California and formulate special regulations governing them, will be introduced at the session of the Legislature this winter, it was announced by state forestry officials. The special districts, in which state authorities would be permitted to prohibit smoking and camping and adopt other restrictive regulations, could be created under the proposed legislation upon request of 50 per cent of the land owners in the affected territory. Similar bills have been submitted without success at the last two legislative sessions.

Turkey raisers in Tehama county are being furnished daily quotations on dressed turkeys delivered in San Francisco by a service arranged by the agricultural extension service cooperating with the farm bureau. These prices will be secured by the Federal State Market News service, a government agency. The service in Tehama county is the result of interest shown by growers in the turkey situation as advanced by the recent meeting in Willows. Tehama county prices are a few cents under San Francisco prices.

At a recent gathering of the Sonoma County Pioneers at Native Sons' Hall in Santa Rosa, Thanksgiving felicitations were extended by the members, whose ages totaled several thousand years. One of the speakers was John S. Taylor, who is 96 years old. He recounted the days of '49 and '50 when he worked in the mines of Nevada county. Taylor is the oldest member of the pioneer society. Joseph M. Talbot, who was born in Bennett valley, near Santa Rosa, was president of the day.

A definite objection to the movement of the Native Sons of the Golden West to have the body of General John A. Sutter brought from Lititz, Pennsylvania, and re-buried beside the historic Sutters' fort, which he erected in Sacramento in the early days, has been raised by the pioneer's grandson, Reginald R. Sutter, of San Francisco. "In my opinion, my grandfather does not need this fictitious honor," says Sutter in a letter received at Sacramento recently.

The old town well in Elk Creek, near Willows, with its old oaken bucket and chain, one of the last survivors of the old days of simple water supplies, is soon to be no more. It has been condemned by an official of the State Board of Health. The owner of the premises has been ordered to install a pump. The well has been in existence longer than Tehema county and has always been a favorite drinking place for thirsty travelers.

Since predatory animal control was instituted in Alameda county in August, 1924, 1,168 predatory animals have been killed within the county by state hunters, according to Earl V. Sands, State hunter, who supervises the work in five counties, including Alameda. Of the number killed, 900 were coyotes, and 268 bobcats. Nine bobcats and five coyotes were killed by state hunters in Alameda county during last October, Sands said.

James Hardini, Windsor rancher, has purchased forty-two acres of the Bruner ranch, three miles south of Windsor, and will start a large dairy.

Californians are "putting the cart before the horse," in expenditures to combat illness, it was claimed by Dr. W. W. Cress, Sacramento city health officer. Taking Sacramento citizens as an example, Dr. Cress said that the average person spends $20 annually for medical care and treatment in illness, exclusive of patent medicines, and only 80 cents a year for disease prevention.

C. W. Forbes, manager of the Manteca telephone company, has been appointed a member of the county board of forestry to represent the Fifth supervisorial district.

The county health officer of Mendocino county has discovered at least thirty cases of smallpox among the Indian men and women and children.

At the home of Mrs. Mary Bond on the old Santa Rosa road, near Petaluma, there is a lilac tree sixty years old in full blossom.

A new subdivision has been opened in the southern part of Vernon which consists of thirty acres, all platted in one-acre divisions, these to be used for factory sites.

Preliminary plans for a Yolo county flower show to be held in Woodland in the early spring were being arranged by Mrs. A. B. Welch, president of the Garden club.

Approximately $2,600 will be spent by the Pacific Telephone and Telegraph company in the extension work in the Livermore district, it was announced by John Robinson, Livermore agent for the company. New cables will be installed to accommodate additional telephone subscribers in the valley.

Erected in honor of the Argonauts of the days of '49, the Pioneer Memorial church, erected by the Congregationalists of Sacramento and vicinity, was dedicated at Sacramento recently. The church stands just across L street from the historic Sutter fort. Rev. Harley Gill, pastor of the church made the principal address.

The Bank of Italy has awarded a contract to build a $60,000 bank building at Long Beach. The structure will rise one story on a site 80x120 feet at the corner of Third street and American avenue. It will contain five store rooms in addition to banking quarters, and it will be built of brick with stucco and cast stone exterior.

K. C. Iwata, Brawley, recently shipped the first full carload of spinach of this season to Chicago. This firm will ship thirty cars more while the total shipments for Imperial valley will probably double that figure. Spinach has not been shipped during the last three seasons, though in former years was handled extensively.

The Yreka chamber of commerce has apointed a special committee to seek a conference with army officials at Presidio to inquire what will be necessary to make Yreka's airplane field an official army-plane landing field. Army planes cannot land except as designated. Presidio officials declare the Yreka field is without any air pockets and landing can readily be made from either side.

Officials of the Baptist church at Arbukle, have refused to accept the resignation of the pastor, Rev. Walter F. Grigg, who had announced his intention of removing to Red Bluff. Rev. Grigg was urged to remain in Arbuckle with the promise that more modern methods would be adopted in church administration. As a first step in this direction, a fine radio set was ordered purchased.

Deaths exceeded birth in San Joaquin county for the first time in three years during the month of October, according to figures given out by the San Joaquin health district. During October there were only ninety-one births, compared with one hundred and sixteen deaths, exclusive of deaths at the state hospital. Births for the first ten months of the year totaled 1,3682, compared with 1,486 for the same period.

Conditions in the Amador county jail at Jackson, are flayed in the report of the grand jury, which has been investigating the bastile. The prisoners are declared to be without fresh air, while the beds and bedding are called unfit for human use. The release of two of the prisoners is demanded because their health is declared to have been undermined by the conditions under which they have been serving their sentences.

The Lodi Union high school judging team won one perpetual silver trophy cup offered by the California Jersey Breeders' Association and four silver medals in the recent dairy cow judging contest at Oakland at the Pacific Slope Dairy show. Ripon school won first place by fifteen points from Lodi with Santa Rosa twelve points ahead of Lodi. The scores were: Ripon 1,220 points; Santa Rosa, 1,217; Lodi, 1,205.

Throwing additional light on the mystery fig trees which are located on the property of W. H. Seaver and L. Leroy King in Elm Court, Roseville, William Cassey, son of John Cassey, who bought the property in 1870 on which these fig trees are standing, drove up from Sacramento recently and informed King that the trees were from fourteen to sixteen years old when his father first bought the property. That makes the trees from ninety-six to 116 years old.

Floyd D. Young, Pomona, United States meteorologist and manager of the frost warning operations in the southern California citrus belt, has returned from San Francisco where he has been working during the summer with the Federal Weather Bureau and has again taken up his headquarters at Pomona. This winter he will have eight assistants in as many districts in directing forecasts of low temperatures.

With the year's business reported the best in the history of the plant, and with the end in sight of the $200,000 plant reconstruction and modernization program, the Western Harvester company, Stockton, successor to Holt and Best, is launched into its new increased production schedule. The shops of the old Holt plant have been rearranged, to provide for more efficiency in production. The first year's output of harvesters is practically double the peak production of the old Holt company. Seven hundred and fifty machines were turned out this year.

EXTENDING AIR SERVICE

An important new development of commercial aviation in the United States is seen in the arrangement recently made whereby the American Railway Express Company will establish an express package service on planes of the National Air Transport, Inc., on routes between New York and Chicago, and between Chicago and Dallas, Texas.

Commenting on the innovation, William P. McCracken, assistant secretary of commerce for aeronautics, declares that this is an important illustration of the readiness of groups engaged in surface transportation to co-operate in the extension of their activities to air transport.

He believes that the carriage of express and passengers will aid in making privately owned air lines profitable, whereas government lines carrying mail alone were operated at a great loss.

Plans have been made for the turning over of the air mail to the commercial air lines, but the department of commerce will foster and encourage civil aeronautics and the establishment of air navigation facilities, under the provisions of the Air commerce Act passed at the last session of Congress.

The wisdom of this measure is being demonstrated by the increased activity of privately operated air lines which has followed its passage.

FARMERS AND CONGRESS

Congress will meet on December 6, with the prospect that some measures of considerable interest will fail of passage or final disposition because of the shortness of the session, which must end on March 4.

Farm relief, one of the knotty problems which engaged attention during the last session, is as far from solution as ever, and it is doubtful that legislation can be enacted before adjournment, although a determined fight for the McNary-Haugen bill will be made by the farm bloc.

Another measure which is considered by many as important to the farmers is the Muscle Shoals leasing bill, with its provision for fertilizer manufacture. Ever since 1921 this problem has been before Congress, but none of the several bills offered have been able to command a majority of both houses.

The present bill embodies the proposal of the Alabama Power Company and associates, which has the approval of a majority of the special joint committee appointed to receive bids for the property last spring. An effort will be made to substitute the bid of the American Cyanide Company in the place of the committee's bill, and there are rumors that still other offers for the property may be made. Then there is the government operation plan proposed by Senator Norris, which has developed considerable support.

As matters now stand, the power company's bill has an apparent advantage through its approval by the committee and the supposed backing of the administration, but whether it can be brought to a vote before March 4 is problematical.

TOURISTS IN FRANCE

American tourists last year spent $226,160,000 in France, according to an estimate of the French National Touring Office, recently made public. The number of Americans visiting France during the year is placed at 220,000.

The same authority estimates that 759,000 from Great Britain and Ireland visited France during the year, while travelers crossing the Spanish border into France numbered 681,148. Tourists from other countries showed a marked increase over former years.

This indicates that France is reaping a harvest from her tourist visitors far in excess of that enjoyed by any other nation, probably between a billion and a half and two billion dollars a year, possibly more.

This fact, coupled with the recognized industry and thrift of the great mass of the French people, appears to place that country in a favorable position among the nations, in spite of the great losses in men and property suffered during the war. As a matter of fact, the French are not in such difficult straits as the present state of her government finances would indicate. Her troubles are political, rather than economic. Her politicians lack the courage to apply taxation measures adequate to rehabilitate the government's finances.

Whining about war debts and showing ill temper toward America will not help France. It may tend to greatly reduce the flow of gold which American tourists now pour into that country.

OUR WILD YOUTH

Alarmists who declare with assurance that American youth is going to the dogs received a rather severe jolt recently in the form of an announcement by the University of New York.

That institution published figures showing that out of its slightly more than 20,000 students, 18,000 supported themselves in whole or in part last year. Total earnings of these students during the year amounted to more than $13,000,000, an average of $722 for each.

Those who scribbled with such facility concerning the depravity of present day college students might find food for reflection in this presentation. Boys and girls who value an education enough to work their way through college are not likely to be headed in the wrong direction.

It is believed that a fair inquiry would disclose that a large majority of students are as earnest and steady as those of any former generation. Only the spectacular antics of a small minority are responsible for the sweeping indictments brought against young people of the present by superficial observers and the sensational writers.

The boys and girls of the present generation may, in the language of the "low-brow," have considerable speed and class, but they are all right. No need to worry about the present generation.

PRACTICAL EDUCATION

An intelligent contribution to the current discussion regarding what is desirable in the way of present-day education was made recently by Dr. John J. Tigert, United States commissioner of education, who declared that the true purpose of education is to fit the citizen to serve as well as to live.

He draws attention to two schools of current thought, one of which would stress cultural education, while the other would place chief emphasis upon vocational training. He admits the validity of both, but would not go to the extremes sought by the advocates of either. He favors a balanced program of education, with sufficient flexibility to meet the needs of each individual.

While not minimizing the value of cultural studies and their absolute necessity for those who would enter the learned professions, Dr. Tigert points out that "one can not live by culture alone. This is especially true of the great mass of our citizens who must engage in pursuits which involve the use of their hands."

It is becoming more and more evident that practical education must be planned in accordance with the needs of the individual in preparation for his lifework. That Dr. Tigert, who is the highest official authority on the subject of education, realizes this and takes a broad-minded view of the situation is a most hopeful sign.

UNCLE JOE'S OVERCOAT

The recent death of "Uncle Joe" Cannon has revived numerous stories of that distinguished statesman, who, though subjected at one time to the most scatching criticism ever heaped upon a legislator, lived to become one of the nation's most beloved citizens. This one is a classic.

It appears that "Uncle Joe" was disinclined to spend much money for his own clothes. Once his daughter decided that he must have a new overcoat, and sought by strategy to fit him out with a garment in keeping with his dignity as a member of Congress. She went to a Danville store and picked out a $50 overcat, paying $35 down and arranging that when she lured her father into the store later the merchant would sell the coat to him for $15. The scheme worked out as planned, but there was an unforseen sequel.

Mr. Cannon wore the new overcoat to his club, where a friend admired it greatly, and the following crisp dialogue took place:

"Joe, you certainly have a nice new coat," said the friend.

"Well, it ought to be; I just paid $15 for it," he replied.

"You surely got a bargain; I'd give $25 for it right now."

"Sold!" said "Uncle Joe."

After making the transaction, he went home and boasted to his family about the ease with which he had made $10 clear profit.

If you don't think you are better than your neighbors, you have an inferiority complex.

Yes, Ben Bolt, the modern Sweet Alice doesn't "tremble with fear at your frown."

GOLDEN RULE SUNDAY

Next Sunday, December 5, is International Golden Rule Sunday. It is sponsored by President Coolidge and by leaders of all faiths and all denominations. A representative national committee urges the participation of all the people of the nation in its observance.

Golden Rule Sunday is most appropriately placed midway between Thanksgiving and Christmas. Its purpose is two-fold: To awaken us to greater appreciation of our own blessings, and to emphasize our responsibility to the less fortunate in all parts of the world.

The central idea of the day's observance is the substitution of a simple and meagre "orphanage" meal in place of our usual bountiful Sunday dinner, and to give substantial aid to those who are not as well blessed with this world's good as ourselves.

To the orphaned children who are the beneficiaries of Golden Rule Sunday, recent earthquakes in Armenia have brought additional suffering. It is evident that unless the people of the United States help those children they will perish. It is therefore hoped that Golden Rule Sunday will be observed in a proper manner in every home in this great land of the free.

President Coolidge has endorsed the annual observance of the day in the following words:

"I regard International Golden Rule Sunday as a movement of much importance. Begun in an attempt to care for the orphaned children of Bible lands, it has been extended to other countries.

"Practical help is the best expression of friendship. The aid we may give out of our abundance to those less fortunately situated than we should be of great value in bringing about the application of the Golden Rule to the settlement of misunderstanding among nations as well as among individuals.

"I hope the voluntary observance of this day may become increasingly prevalent in America and throughout the world."

Contributions to funds for the relief work may be sent direct to Cleveland E. Dodge, national treasurer, 151 Fifth avenue, New York City.

FEWER PENSIONERS

Death's grim toll exacted from the ranks of Civil war veterans is brought to mind by a recent report of the Pension Bureau, which shows that 1,281 former soldiers of the Union army died during the month of October, while 1,418 pensioned widows died during the same month.

At the beginning of November the pension roll had dropped to less than 500,000 for the first time in thirty-five years, the exact number being 499,622. The highest number reached was in 1902, when 999,446 veterans and widows were drawing pensions from the government.

The ranks of the Confederate veterans and their widows have no doubt been depleted in a corresponding measure, and it is sad to contemplate the fact that in a few years not a single participant in the heroic exploits of the Civil war will remain. Their bodies must pass away, but the record of their valor and sacrifice will live, a priceless national heritage.

Nine commodities essential to the United States, but which are controlled by foreign countries are listed by Secretary Hoofer: Coffee, nitrates, iodine, potash, mercury, sisal, camphor, long staple cotton and rubber.

IS CANCER CONQUERED?

What is probably the most important announcement on the subject of cancer that has ever been given to the world is contained in the current issue of the Canada Lancet and Practitioner, one of the leading and conservative medical journals.

Te announcement describes the isolation of the cancer germ and the production of a cambatting anti-toxin by Dr. J. T. Glover of Toronto and New York, after ten years of patient research in collaboration with other eminent laboratory and clinical investigators.

Not until hundreds of tests covering long periods had been conducted by these distinguished scientists were the highly successssful results of their labors made public. Clinics for cancer treatment with the Glover anti-toxin in Toronto, New York, Philadelphia, Cleveland, Pittsburgh, Malone, N. Y., and Butte, Montana, all reporting gratifying results, with many patients apparently cured.

For example, in New York, of 80 patients suffering from cancer in its most malignant and advanced form, ten died, but all the rest excepting three showed great improvement and many seem to have entirely recovered. In Philadelphia, of 85 cases treated, 17 now show no apparent symptoms of cancer, while at Malone, N. Y., out of 24 cases, 15 show marked improvement and five appear to be cured.

The Glover cancer anti-toxin is prepared from the blood of horses and is administered by injection. By use of this serum in suspected cases it is hoped that ultimately humanity may be freed from cancer.

The reports quoted, coming from the very highest authorities, seem to justify the belief that at last science has virtually conquered this frightful malady, which has scourged mankind from the earliest times.

Russian exiles in Paris have formed a society to combat soviet influence.

U. S. WILL STAY OUT

Owing to the attitude of other nations toward the United States Senate's reservations, it now appears that this country will not participate in the World Court after all.

In fact, President Coolidge in his Armistice day address at Kansas City declared that he did not intend to ask the Senate to modify its present position, although he had heretofore earnestly favored adherence to the court with suitable reservations.

The trend of public sentiment in this country appears to be toward non-participation in either the League of Nations or the World Court, a majority evidently believing that the United States can exert its influence in behalf of peace as effectively while maintaining entire independence of foreign entanglements.

OF COURSE

Two colored boys were engaged to change one of the large heavy tires used on the present day type of motor coaches. The bulk and weight of the tire was giving them quite a little trouble and a by-stander, noticing this, made an offer of a quarter to the one making the nearest correct guess of the actual weight of the tire.

The first darkie to proffer his guess very confidently said, "Dis here tire weighs thirty-five pounds, boss."

Whereupon the other boy hilariously drolled his reply, "Boss, dat shows how ignorant some niggers is. Ah jest put seventy pounds of air in da tire."—Forbes Magazine.

Showing the Way

As Columbus demonstrated to the courtier who sought to detract from the credit due him for his discoveries, anyone can stand an egg on end—or cross strange seas—after someone else has shown the way.

The task of creating a nation-wide telephone service, like that of discovering a new world, is one for the pathfinder and the pioneer. The telephone, as the modern American knows it, has been made possible by the doing of a multitude of things in the realms of research, engineering and business administration that had never been done before; by patiently working out an endless succession of seemingly unsolvable problems.

Only because of its willingness and ability to lead the way in telephone development has the Bell System been able to provide America with a nation-wide, universal service that sets the standard for the rest of the world.

RED CROSS DRIVE IN COLMA

The Red Cross membership drive in Colma netted forty memberships and the sum of $42.50.

Considering the population and wealth per capita of Colma's citizens, this is not much of a showing. It is an improvement over last year's returns, however, and for that the solicitors are grateful.

The Ladies' Auxiliary of the Colma Community Center agreed to do what they could in getting some representation of Colma on the San Mateo County Red Cross membership roll.

Mrs. Benassini, Mrs. Atkinson, Mrs. Flick, Mrs. Biggio and Miss Stampanoni were the most active in this laudable undertaking. The results of their efforts cannot be measured by the number of memberships alone. They made a sincere effort to get our community to think rationally.

Most days of the year our vision is limited to the needs of our home and town. It is good for us to realize that we are part of a great nation, and that it is a privilege to be asked to respond to a nation-wide appeal.

The yearly membership drive of the American Red Cross and the sale of Christmas seals for the Anti-Tuberculosis Fund, come once a year. If people would only realize the tremendous importance of both these institutions, the work of our volunteer solicitors would be a labor of love and joy, instead of the difficult and oftimes unpleasant task that it now is.

TAX COLLECTOR ADVISES TAX PAYMENTS BY MAIL

An appeal to the taxpayers of San Mateo county to transact business with the office of County Tax Collector Ambrose McSweeney by mail has been issued from the tax collectors' office at Redwood City. Tax Collector McSweeney's announcement follows:

"Owing to the increase in work in the tax collector's office, and the small space available to handle the business, the suggestion is offered that taxpayers who have not already received notice of their taxes, mail requests for same, and pay by mail.

"Taxpayers should state carefully the lot, block and subdivision in which the property taxed is located, which will aid the clerks in finding the bills.

"Requests for tax bills by mail should be accompanied by a self-addressed stamped envelope. Taxpayers should remit by check or money order, certified check preferred.

"The tax collector is not responsible for errors. All bills should be read carefully, the names checked and the location by lot, block and tract verified. Monday, December 6, is the last day for paying taxes. To avoid congestion, pay now and address all communications to County Tax Collector, A. McSweeney, Redwood City, Cal."

LINEMEN SAVE LIFE OF STRICKEN MATE

While a crew of telephone linemen were at work recently at Danby, Vt., one of the men, Frank P. Vance, was stricken with acute appendicitis.

There was no doctor available, and the nearest hospital was at Rutland, twenty miles away. It was late at night, and the roads were in fearful condition. Nevertheless, Jack Livingstone, the foreman, and his crew of three other men, put the patient on a small truck and started on their journey. For ten miles the going was fairly good, but at that point water loomed up in the darkness, and the men were compelled to wade up to their necks, pulling the truck along with them for a distance of more than 500 yards, the motor having stopped dead midway across the stream. Finally the trip was completed, Vance was operated upon and is recovering, but the doctors at the hospital said that another half hour's delay would have been fatal.

WORKER MEETS DEATH PICKING UP LIVE WIRE

August Nieman, aged 46, of San Francisco, employed at the car repairing shops of the Southern Pacific Company at Visitacion, died late last Friday afternoon after physicians had worked over his unconscious form since 9 o'clock Friday morning, when he was shocked by a high power electric line with which he was working. Nieman was standing on an iron plate when he picked up a live wire, causing a short circuit. When he collapsed the power had to be shut off before workers could aid in his rescue. Nieman remained unconscious after more than six hours of attempts to restore respiration, and died late in the afternoon despite a valiant fight made by physicians and members of the fire department who rushed a pulmotor to the scene of the accident.

Murphy, Jack Purcell, Frank Duignan and Owen Prosser.

PERPETUATE MEMORY OF THE OREGON TRAIL

The United States government has placed its stamp of approval and has given official recognition to the perpetuation of the memory of the old Oregon Trail. This is as it should be. In the enactment by Congress of a measure authorizing the minting of 6,000,000 half-dollar Oregon Trail coins, both obverse and reverse designs being emblematic of the history of the old West, it gives impetus to the program of the Oregon Trail Association, headed by Ezra Meeker, the venerable pioneer, as its president, and with him on its official board some of the most noted men in America.

We may live without love—what is passion but pining?
But where is the man that can live without dining?

SEASONABLE GOOD THINGS

A TASTY dessert which is always seasonable is:

Tapioca Pudding.

Cook one tablespoonful of tapioca in a pint of milk, 15 minutes. Dissolve a tablespoonful of gelatin in one-half cupful of cold water. Add one-half cupful of cold water. Add one-half cupful of sugar, the yolk of an egg and add to the first mixture. Pour over stewed dried peaches or apricots and one-half of a sliced banana. When cool stir in one-half cupful of cream whipped.

Apple and Cranberry Roll.

Make a rich biscuit dough, roll out, cover with one cupful of chopped apples sugared and flavored with nutmeg. Roll up and bake one-half hour. Then pour over some cranberry sauce and bake ten minutes. Any fruit combination may be used in place of cranberries.

Frozen Fruit Salad.

Cut into small bits the fruit from a can each of pineapple, white cherries, pears and peaches. Mix the fruit with the juice from the cans; add two oranges, one-quarter of a grapefruit, cut into bits, two cupfuls of mayonnaise and a pint of whipped cream. Freeze, turn the crank slowly, then pack when chilled into molds. Cut in slices and serve on lettuce.

Belgian Hash.

Take one-half cupful of prunes, one-half cupful of currants, one-half cupful of sugar, one-half grated nutmeg, salt, pepper to taste, three-fourths of a cupful of vinegar and one-fourth cupful of water. Soak two pigs' feet and cook until tender (after chopping) in the above mixture until all the liquor is absorbed.

Corn Meal and Prune Pudding.

Bring one quart of milk to the boiling point, sprinkle in three-fourths of a cupful of corn meal and cook until smooth and thick, stirring constantly. Add one-half teaspoonful of salt, one-half cupful of sugar, two tablespoonfuls of melted butter, two eggs well beaten, and one and one half cupfuls of steamed prunes cut into pieces. Pour into a well greased baking dish and bake until firm. Serve with a lemon, hot cream, or hot milk sauce.

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT

By F. A. WALKER

THE JOB AND THE MAN

HANGING in the offices of one of the best known business men in this country is this motto:

"You cannot get out of a man what God Almighty did not put into him. You must suit the man to the job; not the job to the man."

Perhaps there is a simpler and more direct way of putting it than that. Perhaps you can do it better. If you can, there is a job waiting for you in the office of the man who first wrote it because he is a man always on the hunt for writers who can say things with a punch.

* * * *

There are a good many young men who try to succeed in lines for which they are not at all fitted.

Ambitious parents often insist upon mapping out the life work of their children when they would do a much more kindly thing to let the boys and girls follow their own inclinations.

A tree that is bent is never so good as a tree that grows according to nature.

Thousands of excellent carpenters have been spoiled in the making of poor doctors and the world is worse off for the experiments.

* * * *

Almost every child shows an inclination toward some special thing. It enjoys work of a particular kind when other efforts are drudgery.

The wise parent will seek to find out what that inclination is and offer every aid to the highest endeavor.

A child's mind is not essentially different from the mind of a grown-up. Both offer resistance to doing what is unpleasant and irksome.

* * * *

More than that, individualities are just as distinct and different each from the other as one kind of matter differs from another.

They have different uses and different applications.

To attempt to drive a nail with a sponge would be just as fruitless, if not as destructive, as to try to wash a window with a hammer.

To try to make a boy who loves mechanics and wants to study machinery into a professor of Greek is to misapply his talents and diminish his efficiency.

Every child should be studied.

* * * *

There is no greater and no more interesting process in the world than the development of the human mind.

The baby with his fist in his eye is the seed of the man that is to be.

Put it in the wrong soil, give it too much or too little mental food and water and the final product will be distorted and twisted.

Put it in the right surroundings, give it as far as is proper its way and it will grow into a strong and sturdy plant; a source of joy to itself and you.

Don't plan too much for your children.

Let them have a little of their own way in following their inclinations as to what they shall be and do.

Remember that you cannot get out of a boy or a man what God Almighty did not put into him.

Chain Stores for Japan

It is proposed to establish a chain of 7,000 drug stores in Japan, according to a report to the Department of Commerce from Assistant Commercial Attache H. A. Butts at Tokyo. Two thousand of these stores will be located in the large centers and 5,000 in the rural communities.

In preparation for the opening of the chain system a school for salesmen has been established at Gotanda. More than 5,000 salesmen already have been graduated and are working throughout the country. According to present plans the architectural layout of the stores is to be uniform and each store will carry 2,000 kinds of articles in stock.

THE SOUTH

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

A STRUMMING banjo in the night,
A moon like none the world around,
A fairyland each distant light,
And heaven itself each distant sound,
The lap of waters by a boat
Upon some little stream afloat,
And in the air the scent of flow'rs,
And time that knows no time nor hours,
A breeze's kisses on the mouth—
And that's the South.

Though many paths my feet have trod
While I have trailed the Northern star,
I never felt as near to God,
As close to where the angels are,
As when upon some dusky stream
I did not even need to dream,
My soul afloat, as was the barque,
'Twixt earth and heaven in the dark,
Bathed in the mystical delight
Of Southern night.

O, lovely South—Let one whose feet
Are firmly fixed on northern lands
The praises of your sons repeat,
Because their praise he understands.
For they who speak in softer tongue
Than mine of years when they were young,
Who sing the South, and youth recall
Love all their land, but most of all
The place they found upon her breast
The tenderest.

How It Started

By JEAN NEWTON

"CREST"

IT IS interesting to know that the word "crest" for the heraldic emblem, which in Europe manifests a family tree and which in this democratic country is occasionally found on a lady's stationery, or perhaps her motor car, had its origin in the barnyard!

The crests which we know in modern life are engraved reproductions of the original "crest" worn on the helmet of a fighting ancestor. Occupying the highest place on the helmet, it was the stuffed bird or bowknot or other insignia which constituted his crest by which the heavily armored knight was recognized and known by his friends.

And it was from its position on the helmet that the crest received its name, for the original crest is the tuft or comb found on top of the heads of birds, most familiarly, the comb of the cock, our friend of the barnyard!

"Malthusian" Theory

Thomas Robert Malthus, born 1766, was an English economist interested in social problems and study of population. In 1798 he published a book, "Essay on the Principles of Population as It Affects the Future Improvement of Society." This book demonstrated the theory that in all time population has tended to outrun subsistence, leading to the decay of the nation. He enlarged this theory in 1803 to demonstrate the impossibility of evading poverty and suffering among the mass of the people if unrestricted increase in population continued.

Have Kidneys Examined By Your Doctor

Take Salts to Wash Kidneys If Back Pains You or Bladder Bothers

Flush your kidneys by drinking a quart of water each day, also take salts occasionally, says a noted authority, who tells us that too much rich food forms acids which almost paralyze the kidneys in their efforts to expel it from the blood. They become sluggish and weaken; then you may suffer with a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach sours, tongue is coated, and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine gets cloudy, full of sediment, the channels often get sore and irritated, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night.

To help neutralize these irritating acids, to help cleanse the kidneys and flush off the body's urinous waste, get four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy here; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days, and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help flush and stimulate sluggish kidneys; also to neutralize the acids in the system so they no longer irritate, thus often relieving bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, cannot injure and makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink.

Peoples of the East Accept Death Lightly

To the West, death is a closed door; to the East, an open one. An American told me recently that, when he was in China on an official mission, he and his colleagues were entertained by a delightful little mandarin, who was always cheerful and considerate. He had a remarkable insight into European politics, which he discussed enthusiastically and at length. His smile was as persistent as his jokes, yet he was under sentence of death. The sentence was carried out the day after the American mission left.

In a certain Arabian state, an official was exceedingly kind in helping me organize a caravan. One day I asked his wife if her lord could accompany me to the market to choose some new waterskins.

"He is to be hanged tomorrow," she said, "by the emir's order, but his brother will go with you."

Last year I was passing through Syria. I stopped to drink mint tea with an old friend, wife of a patriot, or a revolutionary—the terms are synonymous in the East. It just depends which side you're on!

"How is the master?" I asked politely, over my third scented glass.

"The French killed him last week," my hostess answered unmoved. I gasped horror and protest. "He leaves five sons," she reassured me, surprised at my emotion.—Rosita Forbes in Pearson's Magazine.

Material Needed to Make Up Square Meal

The familiar expression "a square meal" may be adapted to represent a complete diet supplying all the material that the body needs, say R. H. A. Plimmer of the University of London and Violet G. Plimmer in Hygeia Magazine. The center of the square is filled with the fat, carbohydrate, mineral salts and water; the corners are filled respectively with vitamines A, B and C and protein P.

The corner A represents both the fat soluble vitamines A and D, which are found in the same foods. Foods from the same corner may be used alternatively, but a food from one corner is not a substitute for one from another corner. A square meal consists of food from all four corners in suitable proportions.

Some of the foods in the A corner are butter, cod liver oil, milk, egg yolk and liver; in the C corner are fresh fruits, especially citrus fruits, tomatoes and green vegetables either raw or very slightly cooked; the B corner contains whole meal cereal products, dried peas, beans and lentils and nuts; corner P includes meat, eggs, milk and cheese and fish.

Island's "Soup" Harvest

There is an island off the coast of China that has but one industry. It is soup. To those not initiated, birds' nest soup may easily summon up a picture of stewed twigs, string, grass, bits of cotton and feathers; but connoisseurs of the exotic know that the nests from which this brand of soup is made are composed entirely of a gelatinous substance excreted by the birds as they build. On this island, where an intensive soup industry is conducted (it is sometimes called Birds' Nest island, sometimes the Island of a Hundred Peaks), there are caves in which the birds construct their dwellings in great numbers. These are regularly harvested after each breeding season and the delicacy is prepared for export.

Lonsdale Romance

There is a romantic story, remembered perhaps by very few, connected with the wonderful dinner set of Sevres china at Lowther castle. It had been stolen in Paris during the revolution, and subsequently purchased by the second earl of Lonsdale.

There were three pieces wanting, and for these the earl searched for many years without success. At last—his age was eighty—he heard that they were catalogued in a sale in London. He sent a friend to purchase them, and, being very feeble, waited outside in his brougham. The missing pieces were purchased, Lord Lonsdale took them home—and died that night.

Buried Treasure

A grim statistician announces that under the sod in the cemeteries of this country a treasure estimated at $20,000,000,000 has been buried since the beginning of American history. No one can dispute these figures. No one will care to analyze them carefully.

The ancient tombs of Egypt have given up treasure of priceless value. Excavations in buried cities have shown that man has ever held to the custom of burying jewels and baubles and valuable trinkets with the dead. The sword and helmet of many a warrior have gone with him into his dark and narrow bed.—Thrift Magazine.

If He Had a Million

Joe Brown was the colored porter at a little bank in southern Kansas. One spring day he rested on his broom and looked outdoors where nature beckoned him down to the river where he might doze and wait for a catfish nibble on his line.

"Gee, boss," he declared fervently, "I suttinly do wisht Ah had a million dollahs!"

"A million dollars, Joe?" the cashier said, smiling. "What would you do with a million dollars?"

"Ah'd buy me some pigs and make me some money."—Judge.

"Bad Man" Began His Lawless Life Early

Bill Langley probably was one of the toughest characters that Texas ever produced, Owen P. White tells us, in Collier's Magazine. According to his family Bible he was born of honest, God-fearing parents, but he took to shooting early. When he was only fourteen years old he was doing his daily dozen with a pair of six-shooters and filling all the trees in the ancestral wood lot with clusters of leaden bullets, generally grouped a dozen in a spot and no spot more than six inches in diameter. Thus early in life did Bill make a bid for fame. He learned to shoot with both hands; afoot or horseback, it was the same to him. But, sad to relate of one so young, Bill's conscience apparently was just as well trained as his shooting eye. It never bothered him in the slightest degree. Hence, before he was nineteen years he had six nicks on his gun and had been hanged by a Texas vigilance committee. But the hanging did not "take." Members of the party fired shots at him as they rode away. One of the bullets clipped the rope, weakening it, and a few moments later he dropped to the ground and quickly recovered. After several years of wild depredation, Langley was executed in Giddings, Texas, October 11, 1878.

Joel Chandler Harris Never a Social "Lion"

The first published work of Joel Chandler Harris, creator of "Uncle Remus," was set into type by hand as ideas came to his head, without first being committed to paper, says J. T. Manry of Plain Dealing, who worked with Harris on the Monroe Advertiser in Forsyth, Ga., shortly after the close of the Civil war.

Harris would not read his compositions after they were in print if he could avoid it. He taught Manry to read proof and thus avoided having to read what he had "written" with type. Harris was extremely shy and declined to meet many persons. Once Harris, Mark Twain and George W. Cable met in New Orleans. Twain recounts the instance in his "Life on the Mississippi." When the New Orleans children saw "Uncle Remus" they were greatly disapointed and exclaimed:

"Why, he's white."

To console them, a move was made to have Harris read the Tar-Baby story aloud. But he never had real aloud to people and was too shy to make the venture.

Ponderous German Verbs

The ponderous use of the divided German verb is as characteristic of their mental processes as is one of their great machines. In fact, it reminds one of Big Bertha shooting at Paris. It also seems to be the thing which is most embedded in their way of thinking.

I knew a German who had lived forty years in America and had practically forgotten all of his German. But to the end of his days he would get off such an expression as this: "As long as I live in this town the more I find, by Jiminy Christmas, out," and that final "out" landed with all the force of a projectile which had been carefully aimed and had carried a long distance.—Henry C. Emery in Harper's Magazine.

Handel Rebuked King

Th courage of conviction is a characteristic to be admired. Handel held no other avocation or individual higher in his estimation than the elevated standard to which he placed music. To him the power of man was no greated power than that of his art. With such exalted reverence did his genius worship the spirit of music it is quite reasonable to accept his fearless manner of constantly championing it, no matter what the dignity of the personage whom he found himself compelled to address. On one occasion, when the king of England told Handel how greatly the performance of "The Messiah" had pleased him, the composer answered: "Your majesty, I did not intend to amuse or afford pleasure, but to make the world better."—The Violinist.

Hid Stolen Gold in Eye

The death of the owner of a "pub" at Kalgoorlie, western Australia, recently revealed a unique theft from the gold mines many years ago. In his youth the man had lost an eye in an explosion and a glass one had been substituted in the socket. A cavity at the back of this furnished a hiding place for gold stolen from the mine, and though the miner stole only a small bit of gold each day, his revenue from this source was about $40 a week. Before his death the man told his friends that he had stolen several thousand dollars worth of gold, but that he retired and bought a "pub," fearing he might arouse suspicion.

New Name for Old Dish

A correspondent of the Daily Chronicle of London, who traveled by rail from Bucharest to Cracow, writes:

"As is the custom on transcontimental lines, the menu for each meal was printed in the language of the country through which the train was passing at the time. Thus I had selected my lunch in Rumanian, but at dinner was confronted by a Polish menu. I chose 'hementex,' which somehow suggested an Esperanto delicacy. What was my delight when a dish of ham and eggs was placed before me!"

PREVENTIVE DENTISTRY

By Dr. W. J. Lantheaume

Kweschun (Premature Extraction) What Result.

Answer: Did you ever plant carrots, turnips, lettuce, peas, onions? Yes! You have tried truck gardening? Well! Well! Well! If you have, did the experience teach the law of relativity between the thing planted and what the thing is planted in? If you "extract" the first bunch of, say carrots, and then plant some more carrots, you observe the first bunch is better than the second. If you keep on extracting "carrots," it isn't long before "they ain't no carrots" to extract. Why? Because you have destroyed the quality and sweetness of the soil. It is sour on you. I don't blame the soil.

Now, listen! When you extract "baby teeth" too soon you destroy the natural sweet bone growth of nature. The normal bone development "sours on you," and the jaw bones are unfit for the second or permanent teeth. The result is that the second teeth crowd and push themselves to the front row of the mouth theatre, like humans snarl, bite, push and shove to get into a movie on Saturday evening. They don't know nothin', can't realize they can get in only as fast as they come out. And, believe me, the deciduous audience are not going to be extracted or rooted out until they have seen the entire show.

Mastered patience would mean ease, comfort, rest, pleasure—in a box seat, a big cigar, and chewing gum.

Which seems most reasonable?

1. Rush, bang, bite, push, shove, hurry, knock 'em over, or
2. Ease, quietude, relaxation and realization of the Golden Rule.

Comfortably seated in "Life's box seat" of observation, one has an opportunity to accustom themselves to the surroundings and adjust one's eyes to the darkness (the absence of light.)

Summary

1. Baby has teeth.
2. Cultivate them.
3. Plant some alfalfa once in a while.
4. Irrigate, cleanse, sweeten.

Conclusion

5. Mature fruit, onions, carrots (baby teeth.)
6. Natural removal from soil. (When nature says "Take 'em away.")
7. Present fruit good. Future fruit better.
8. Present baby teeth good. Future baby teeth better.
9. Relished eats, health, happiness and joy in living.

Bread may not be sold in Germany until it is twenty-four hours old, but American bootleggers are hampered by no such restriction.

There will be a big play day at Jefferson Union high school on December 4 for all high school girls Burlingame high is bringing a Junior-Senior soccer team and a Freshman soccer team to play Jefferson's respective teams. Pescadero will play soccer. Half Moon Bay is bringing three basketball teams to play against Jefferson. There will be two Freshman-Sophomore basketball teams and one Junior-Senior basketball team. A luncheon will be served and entertainment will be provided by Jefferson students. The play day will begin at 9:30 a. m.

The Jefferson Union high school boys' soccer team played Pescadero a league soccer game last Wednesday, the score being 0-0. After the game a dinner was served for the teams. As Pescadero is a very small school, consisting of around thirty, everyone was present at the game and later at the feast. In the evening a dance was given in honor of Pescadero. This was done as a return courtesy to the wonderful dance Jefferson attended at Pescadero last year.

Next Monday, December 6, the New State Theatre will present "The Cave Man," with Matt Moore as the weakling and as a coal heaver, with other attraction that will interest the growing list of patrons.
